“More and more millennials are putting down their phones and exploring nature, shattering the stereotypes many have of young people. Being surrounded by society and interacting with people virtually constantly needs extremely natural or calming spaces for them to strike a balance. Reflective of this is millennials increasingly experimenting with happy mood based colours.”

Manav Patel,
Principal Architect and Co-
Founder, MS Design Studio

“Millennials are an ambitious & achievement oriented lot and in the process they are deprived of the pleasure of being amidst nature, the serene green environment & the ivory being. Its them who need the most to be in the natural green environment to de-stress themselves. Added to this, the land getting dearer day by day makes it highly improbable to have an expansive outdoor garden. Thus our efforts are towards bringing the outdoors green into their indoor living space through the concept of vertical garden.”
